NOTE FOR: The Director

Crisis management improvement is one of the more important issues in the community right now. All agencies are looking for ways to improve. At the moment, however, movement on this issue is side-tracked by concerns stemming from uncertainty about bureaucratic relationships after PRM-11 decisions are made. When the President has made his decisions and a shape to the community can be discerned, I know that those involved in this issue will once again begin to work on solutions in meetings of the kind Vince Heyman has suggested in the attached memo.

Gary--

     You asked for our views on Vince Heyman's memorandum to the DDCI regarding crisis analysis via simulations. I have no problem with the proposal made by Vince (even though it did not go through the DDI), and I leave to others whether we are at the point where the various agencies are ready to do this on a Community basis. Since Cord Meyer has been delegated crisis management responsibilities by Hank, I suggest that the memorandum be given to him for any advice he wishes to give Hank.
